The semi-synthesis of [D-Asp8]AVP has been completed. The aspartic acid has been prepared from L-aspartyl-D,L-alpha-hydroxyprolidone, as such material is not readily available commercially. The hydroxyl group of the aspartic acid has been protected with the dihydropyridine (nitro or chloro) and the protecting group removed in acid. Acetylation of the carboxylic acid group and intramolecular acylation with acyl chloride give N-acetyl-D,L-aspartyl-D,L-alpha-hydroxyprolidone which is deprotected with methanolic ammonia to give N-acetyl-D,L-aspartyl-L-glutamic acid. Condensation of the N-acetyl-L-aspartyl-L-glutamic acid with Boc-L-glutamic acid using di-tert-butyl dicarbonate as the coupling agent gives the Boc-Asp-Glu-Boc peptide, which is deprotected in acid to give the protected D,L-aspartyl-D,L-glutamic acid. Treatment of this dipeptide with a cyanogen bromide solution in dimethylformamide gives the corresponding dipeptide-cyanogen bromide. The dipeptide-cy

Photo In a rare rebuke to the law school industry, two powerful Senators have asked the ABA to remove the American Bar Association's accreditation of law schools. Senator Orrin G. Hatch of Utah and Senator Charles E. Grassley of Iowa introduced legislation earlier this month that would require the ABA to remove the accreditation of any law school that fails to prevent sexual harassment or assault from occurring on its campus. The letter, dated Friday and addressed to the ABA's president, William C. Hubbard, notifies the ABA that the sponsors are examining the ways in which the accreditation process promotes or inhibits harassment, and urges the ABA to ensure law schools are following its harassment policies. The authors note that the ABA sanctions law schools when misconduct occurs at its accredited schools. The authors also ask the ABA to hold each law school to the same standards it applies to law schools generally. The authors note that the ABA has broad authority over law schools, including the ability to revoke accreditation and sanction law schools. A second letter from the same authors sent to the heads of all 123 law schools was also signed by Senator John Cornyn of Texas and Senator Richard Durbin of Illinois. The letters, which also mention an e-mail to law schools from the ABA regarding the issue last year, represent a notable public rebuff to the law school industry, which has largely escaped more stringent regulation for years. The issue is receiving renewed attention after the suicide of the former Yale Law School student Alex Pinkleton, who died in her dorm last fall after being subject to sexual harassment. The ABA published a harassment policy for law schools in 2011, but the authors of the letters say that neither the ABA nor the law schools have done much to enforce it. "We think that their efforts are extremely inadequate," said Senator Richard Blumenthal of Connecticut, who is also a signer of the letter. The senators note that the ABA has added eight schools to its accreditation list since 2011, when it instituted a policy requiring schools to develop campus conduct codes. In a statement, Senator Christopher A. Coons, Democrat of Delaware, said: "One of the most pressing problems the law school industry faces today is a lack of diversity on its own campus," and that

Hi all - i am currently using pyTivo which has proven to be okay for the most part but i'm not a fan of the interface. I am looking into something to use with my Nextpvr using an Xbox. I have been looking at Plex Media Player and Plex Pass. I want something with a good gui interface and the ability to watch and record several devices all in one sitting. Any ideas??? Hi BUDDY - I have been on Plex Pass for about 3 yrs - it works just fine and we have over 1,500 episodes - no speed restrictions or file limits to be found. We would never think of taking it down. Try it out - you won't be disappointed. It is free to use as are all of our apps. Plex Pass is an advanced application that is optimised for smooth video playback and is capable of playing MPEG-2, MPEG-4 (MPEG-4 is the next generation of the MPEG standard) and MPEG-4 AVC (MPEG-4 Advanced Video Coding). It's a great app for playing back your recorded shows. It is also capable of playing back any of the videos you have in your external hard drive (if you have a HDD) as well as play back any videos you have on a server (via a DLNA connection). It does not have all the features of a NextPVR but it does support the major features of NextPVR like scheduling, one button pause and play, etc. If you would like to try out Plex Pass, you can download it from here: Be sure to try it out yourself as I will not be able to answer questions in the forum. Best of luck. Hi BUDDY - If you can afford it, or want to consider getting it in the future, there is nothing like the true
