FatBatt For Windows

FatBatt is a handy application that informs users about how much time they can actually work while their laptop or mobile is charging. The application has a helpful and easy-to-use interface. Users can also directly access the app through the Android settings menu. This way, they can receive notifications about applications that are currently draining the battery, or even close them if they are not very important. The application also provides information about the battery state and lets users know how much battery time they can save if they use the dark theme of the Android operating system. FatBatt Features: FatBatt not only tells users how long they can work with an empty battery but also indicates applications that are draining the battery the most. Also, it helps users find out how much battery time they can save if they dim their screen. Users can also get notifications about applications that are draining the battery, or close them if they are not very important. The app can also inform users about the battery state and how much battery time they can save if they use the dark theme of the operating system. This tool is compatible with most Android smart devices. With my old HTC Desire S, I used to manually download and install stock ROMs. I did it one by one in order to get the latest updates. Then, I had an iPhone 4s. So, I kept my iPhone just for calling on the phone. It was great. Then, I got the Nexus 4. I didn't manage to hide it because the iPhone called me all the time. Now, I have a Galaxy S2. It has quite nice features. But the problem is that I do not want to keep it for the phone calls. I want to download and install ROMs in order to have newer features (like Gingerbread). Before buying the S2, I already installed a custom ROM. But I do not want it anymore. I do not have time for ROMs because I have to work so much. Then, I found out about FatBatt. I installed it manually. But the problem is that it does not seem to work very well. It simply doesn't notify me that the battery is running low. So, I do not know when I should get my charger or if it is already charged. When I check my battery status, it shows that the battery is fully charged. But I do not know when it will discharge. So, the purpose of the app is defeated.

If you are going to be out for an hour, it will tell you that you will save up to 50 minutes. FatBatt also helps you to get notification on your applications that are running the most, so that you can close them if they are not that important.
