take the serial number of the file directly. Replace the iPhone's built-in keyboard with some more useful apps. For example, Spaces can be used as a notification center. You can create a separate notification center by tapping the notification center icon in the top left corner of the home screen. Then, you can add to it by selecting the "+" icon, which opens a blank notification. When you have a notification, you can select the spacing between the two lines to set the spacing between the two. The right-most side of the space will then turn blue, as seen on the below screenshot. Tap the blue line to add an app. This notification center will contain your app's notification, a phone call, voicemail, or any other notification your app might send. Tap an app to add it to your space, and you'll get a thumbnail of the app, and all of its relevant information. For example, when I have an appointment on Google Calendar, I can create a space in my Notification center, and add Google's calendar app to the space. This will display a thumbnail of my Google Calendar appointments. If I'm running an app that records my voice for me, I can add that to a space in my notification center, and have a notification in my notification center that will play a recording of my voice. One of the most useful things about this space is that it can work with any app that sends notifications. And this is definitely a space that can be used for any app. A mini-tutorial on using bokeh in the Humanities The term ‘bokeh’ was used, I believe, to indicate that the cloud patterns were ‘beautiful’ or ‘elegant’. The word has been around in my mind since seeing the term used in the “Driving in Brazil” movie. I think the word comes from the Japanese ‘boke’, meaning
