A series of new pyrido[2,3-d]pyrimidine-2,4-(1H,3H)-dione derivatives were synthesized and characterized by ^1H NMR and HRMS. In addition, all target compounds were evaluated for their anti-inflammatory activities in vivo and in vitro. The inhibitory rates of anti-inflammatory activity in vivo for these compounds were in the range of 26.13-81.17%, and the IC_{50} value of the most active compound 1i was $1.23\ \mu\text{M}$. From the results of the anti-inflammatory effect and the structure-activity relationship (SAR), it was suggested that the introduction of an imidazopyridine fragment to the pyrido[2,3-d]pyrimidine-2,4-(1H,3H)-dione derivatives might improve the anti-inflammatory activity. Furthermore, these data indicate that the imidazopyridine fragment and the hydrophobic group at C5 of the pyrido[2,3-d]pyrimidine-2,4-(1H,3H)-dione scaffold could be helpful in designing more potent anti-inflammatory agents.

1. Field of the Invention The present invention generally relates to computer technology and, more particularly, to a method of managing data included in units of data in a read-only memory for use with a computer.

2. Description of the Related Art Even when only one sector of 512 bytes is used to record data, a high-capacity storage medium, such as a hard disk or an optical disk, is inevitably provided with spare sectors which can be optionally used to record, as a backup, data stored on the medium when the normal operation of the medium is stopped temporarily. In the case of a hard disk, data recorded on a spare sector can also be read out by an external device even while the medium is rotating. In such a high-capacity storage medium, the data stored in the spare sectors
