But the real tragedy is not the drugs. It is the astounding number of scientists, government officials and companies that stand to profit from the "passing" of these dangerous drugs. As Natural News has previously reported, since the passage of the Genetic Manipulation Rules Act of 2014, the U.S. government has been free to approve new toxic ingredients in cosmetics without any long-term scientific tests to show the safety of the new ingredients. This has opened the door for George Mason University researchers to begin approving these ingredients to make cosmetics, including some considered hazardous by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. For example, in November 2016, the FDA approved probiotic yeast, which had been altered to produce omega-3 fatty acids, for use in human food products. In March 2017, the U.S. government began exporting the yeast to China, Israel and Mexico. And in November of 2017, FDA approved a GM yeast for making foods. While these ingredients are safe for consumption by humans, since they are all unapproved for use in cosmetics, the GMO ingredients in cosmetics will continue to affect us, and possibly make us sick. However, according to George Mason University, it is up to the industry to prove safety before they can sell their products. This presents a problem because these products have been tested by the industry itself. For example, a 2016 article published in the journal Toxicology and Applied Pharmacology, explained that the scientists knew that the industry had no plans to submit safety data for the ingredients it is selling. The article said that as a result, the FDA was issuing the approval of the ingredients to the public. According to the 2015 report issued by the industry-funded American Council on Science and Health, the industry had tested its own ingredients to make sure they were safe for use. Therefore, industry was free to make claims about how their ingredients were good for us when they had independently tested them themselves 0cc13bf012

I have a hiveContext object, and when I try to run something like: c.sql("SELECT * FROM (select * from table1) as tbl1 join (select * from table2) as tbl2 on...where.......) I get this error: Caused by: org.apache.spark.SparkException: 'org.apache.hadoop.hive.contrib.accumulo.HiveAccumuloRelation' is an abstract class and cannot be instantiated It seems that the Spark SQL driver cannot understand the JOIN and it is trying to construct a hiveContext which doesn't make sense. I am guessing there is some other way to join 2 tables on a hiveContext in Spark SQL? A: You can either use leftJoin directly in Spark SQL c.sql("SELECT * FROM table1 left join table2 on...") or use leftOuterJoin if the data already exists in table2 c.sql("SELECT * FROM table1 leftOuterJoin table2 on...") Danny Ainge's tenacity is showing as he passed up potential magic if the Celtics hit the free agent market Thursday. Sources say the Celtics have already approached Carmelo Anthony and LeBron James with the message they are available for a trade. Those two and their respective agents are understood to be gauging Boston's interest. The Celtics believe they can't match what the Bulls or Magic are offering Anthony, who has two years and $54 million left on his contract. The Celtics also can't match what it would take to make James work in the short term without the same level of success long term that would be required to keep Kevin Garnett, Ray Allen, Paul Pierce and Glen Davis. But Ainge has long had a different strategy. And as the Celtics have often dealt with trades in recent years, he isn�

While adware is not known to be harmful, you may want to remove it, especially if you have Microsoft Windows installed. And here's one possible explanation as to why this occurred. but I do not know how to fix it. Here's my problem. I just got the Corel desktop suite, and I want to install photoshop. I went to their website, and it says that I need to pay $39.95 for an activation code. Anyway, when I go there, it takes me to the store page, and there is no option to enter the serial number. I think I'm doing it wrong, because I know you need to get the serial number from the desktop software that you are trying to install. Please help! Linda A: I had the same issue. It turns out that it was caused by a file called windvd.cat in the following directory: C:\ProgramData\Corel\Product\WinDVD\HandBrake\HDVideo\HDVideoPlugin\Contents\Secondary The file was created on the most recent install of a winDVD plugin, but I hadn't used it since then. I deleted the file and no longer had the black screens or the missing serial number.
