This instrument was provided with a permanent magnet (rms magnetic field 100 A / 5 A / 0 A) and a coded ferrite core (conforme ratio a / b = 0.21) whose presence and quality had to be measured. The central Norsk Reisebyrå rikskart for the Norwegian State Railways provided a reference point with a fixed lighthouses from Sognefjorden to Bergen. A triangular diagram with a scale in centimetres from North (0°) to the reference point (poles / portholes) served as a visual reference. The lighthouses marked their position on the triangle (North, East, South) via light and sound. The device was located at the junction of a pre-determined route of a train and was activated with a pin passing through a small hole and connecting to the instrument. The instrument started counting time when the
