Software Star Rating: 4.2 (3 votes) - Advertisement -Q: Excel Date function not working for dates between range I'm using Excel 2010. When I try to use the following formula in a spreadsheet, I get the following error: Cannot use function DATE in this context. =DATE(2016,11,31)+1 I know the error is to do with the date not being in a recognised format, but I can't see why it's erroring on the date format. Any ideas? A: We can look at the error message and at what the function does in the VBA editor and it seems to me that your date is being evaluated as a string: If you open the Function Explorer and check the Properties of the DATE function it tells you that it is a String function. Try using a different format, either YYYY-MM-DD or YYYY/MM/DD. Another way to interpret the error is that you are trying to add a Date or a DateTime value to a number.
