Double Cross (2000 film)Q: Why is my library not being pulled in? My root structure looks like this:

├── composer | ├── require | └── composer.json |── lib
| ├── storage | └── helloworld | ├── index.php |
├── LICENSE | ├── README.md | └── src | ├──
Application | └── (...) └── test I'm using composer to

load my library, as seen in my composer.json: {

"require": { "application/vendor/autoload.php": {
"StorageLibrary": "Library/Storage.php" } } }

Now, I'm trying to call the index.php in the storage/Application/ folder, which should return Hello World! But, when I call it, it says: Fatal error: Class 'StorageLibrary' not found The index.php file is in the "storage/Application/" folder.

Why isn't it pulling in my library? A: A couple of things to check. Try changing the composer.json file's paths to absolute paths in the require field -

./lib/Storage/Application/ Check the path of the index.php file. In it's code you have it calling../../src/Application.php. This will search for the file in the parent directory rather than the current directory. Possible explanation: Folder structure: project root composer.json composer.lock css lib test index.php

/var/www/composer.json /var/www/composer
