Case 2: BIM Professional Buildings Document Three-dimensional CAD data and its easy assembly 3D printing. Building information model (BIM) is the information in a 3D model obtained by a digital process, which is used for realizing a building with three-dimensional formation and is a very large-scale information model of a building. Notes About "Bijin-tankuta" by Yohei Matsubara In the early 1990s, the Auto Manufacturers Association of Japan (AJA) built a "office building" (AJA: building name "Bijin-tankuta") for about 3000 employees in a safe and highly reliable way by using 3D building information model (BIM). However, a 3D building information model (BIM) has to be made by using 2D drawings and is extremely time-consuming and difficult. One of the associates, Imada, got one idea that he could prove this concept could be applied to BIM by using a 2D fax to scan a 2D drawing in the form of a 1D fax. So he decided to try to apply this method of using 1D fax to making a 3D building information model (BIM).This is the first research showing a proof that a 1D fax can be used to make a 3D building information model (BIM). This is the first research showing a proof that a 1D fax can be used to make a 3D building information model (BIM). So, the proof of concept
